

Face the Difficulties, Bloom, and find Hope, Overflowing

Once again, I found myself thinking that I had shared all I needed to share. Then I received a writing* and it was as if the Lord was asking me had I shared enough about our relationship with one another—He, the creator and I, the creation and even how He communicates with me through writings. As I was looking for the writing that best addresses this, I found another writing that I thought would help you understand Him in a way that maybe you had not been shown.

From a writing dated 10/8/2008: “.... Finish all tasks that you have started. Prepare for impact of the most unimaginable proportion. Prepare your eyes to see what you never thought possible. Prepare your ears to hear the cries and moans of discomfort of an entire nation. Prepare your heart to receive those who have not heard and are totally consumed by the pain of what was not conceivable.

This will be a day, starting out like many days, but will erupt into massive chaos and confusion. All that was will no longer be. All security of the world will vanish. All routines will vanish. All Hope will vanish as buildings collapse, finances collapse, and even hearts collapse as all is covered in Ash. Ash representing all that is left that gave the world system life; many will even eat its bitterness as they flee from the destruction. (A friend reminded me how Moses ground up the golden calf (representing the world system) and the Israelites drank it. Exodus 32:20)

(the writing continues) This was not My making; I did allow it, however, people have the ability to make their own choices. It was poor choices made that has led to this devastation. Choices not made by seeking Me, but choices made for man’s glory at the expense of other men. What does a man lose if He loses all he owns (the world,) but keeps his soul? What does a man gain if he gains the entire world, but loses his soul?

(then the message of Hope) What was will no longer be. What will be will be far greater than what was lost. It will be a people who live their lives to the glory of the Creator of the Universe that will rise out of the ashes to flourish and bloom for everyone to see. God’s love will prevail. God’s people will prevail. God’s ways will prevail. And your land will be healed. It will shine as the Beacon on the Hill and others will watch with envy. The God of the Bible will be known as the one true God who loves His people.”

* About my writings from a writing dated 12/16/2007: “.... Debbie, the thoughts that you write come from your heart. They are not thoughts read in any book man has written. They are not thoughts that man has taught you to think. They are not thoughts dreamed up to impress others. They are especially designed to fit and to be worn by one. They have been especially designed to guide, direct, teach, encourage, give hope to one. They are thoughts designed for an original; one gifted in ways that have yet to be discovered. The thoughts have captured the heart; have allowed the penetration into the very soul. The thoughts have strengthened what once was just a flicker which burns bright with strength and will ignite into a fire of passion. .... I wish to commune with all My children; yet it takes time and surrender to build a relationship. I love them so much, yet they say they love Me, yet they don’t seek Me. They know nothing of Me; unless it is something they have been told they should think.

(the writing continues) What happens when someone forms their opinions based on the opinions/interpretations of another? As the Holy Spirit in them remains quieted, they don't hear the guidance, the wisdom, the teachings; the Holy Spirit is drowned out by their desire of selfish pursuits, self-centeredness, and even in My name and for My Glory.

All is vanity, Debbie, vanity, vanity, vanity. Debbie, what do you see from your window? You see what is above the surface and below the clouds. What do I see, Debbie? I see what it once was, is, and will be. I see people in their homes. I see into their hearts. I hear their thoughts. I know their concerns, motivations, hopes, dreams. I know what is coming their way. And I long for them to know Me. I want to be and supply all they desire. Yet they know not who I am; only an opinion that someone has given them to think."

When my husband seeks the Lord with his whole heart, mind, and soul, the way the Lord communicates with him is not the same as He does with me. He does not receive writings as I do. He needs as much guidance and direction and counseling as I do, but not in the same way; not in the same areas of his life. His encouragement is not to overcome fear and feelings of failure; his encouragement is to carry out the plans, the projects, that the Lord has for him to do; not of a people relationship nature, but they are of technical expertise. To fulfill the projects the Lord has for him to do for God's Kingdom requires him to be just as dependent on the Lord as I am—just in a different way. He still has to follow the leading of the Holy Spirit to be/do as the creation that the Creator has created him to be/do; he has his own selfish self-centered nature to overcome. Not everyone will receive writings, but this is our way—mine and the Lord's—for Him to provide me what I need and then me in turn to be able to share with you (to be/do what the Creator has created me to be/do.) This is His way in my life; yours may look different or may be similar—but that is between you and the Creator to discover. For many, He speaks through the Bible, but know whatever way, if you seek Him with your whole heart, mind, and soul, He will find a way that is best to reach you. Please understand for 10 years prior to my first writing, I had many dreams and a few visions—it was a very difficult time and I was very fragile. The dreams were very vivid and memorable—I still remember them to this day. I still receive a dream from time to time—usually to get/focus my attention, but I mainly seek the Lord through written prayer and write His response.

From many writings, I have been shown the Path of Life, or as in this writing dated 5/11/2007: "... This is the pathway to discover My (His) heart:

To Love Me is to Know Me

To Know Me is to Trust Me

To Trust Me is to have Hope

To have Hope is to have Life Eternal."

This is the path that we all, as Christians, will journey—in a writing from 10/9/2006: "...this is the path to your freedom." It is the path of the wilderness journey as shown in "the Path to Overflowing Hope" shared at this website in .pdf file as well as audio. As I journeyed my own path, and started receiving writings, I was always asked at the beginning of every writing a question: "Do you know Me?" "Do you love Me?" "Do you trust Me?" Understand, with each question I was given a response: For example, "Do you love Me?" The next line—His response was: "Know how much I love you." I was greatly comforted in this way. Later, as the writings became more about the difficulties that would come, the question became: "Debbie, Do you hear Me? Debbie, Do you really, really hear Me? Do you hear me, Debbie? Listen, Debbie, like you have never heard before ..." My question is to you: "Do you hear Him? He is waiting for you. He has all the help that you need. He desires more than anything to be your "First Love" and to be your "All in All." Seek Him with your whole heart, mind and soul and I promise you will find Him in ways you never knew was possible. Thank you for once again letting me share with you!
