

Transcending the Current and Reaching to Obtain the New !!!

What I call a “Transformation process” from a portion of a writing*, dated 6/30/2008, I am shown is a “transcending the current and reaching to obtain the new.” From the writing: “.... Debbie, do you really, really know Me? Then know I love with a love that My children don’t understand and can’t comprehend. You see, Debbie, they chase after grandiose dreams and promises never to be fulfilled. With all their energy, money, resources they chase after that which will only bring them to a prison of exasperation and frustration. Even those who say they love Me are so entrenched in their ways of living life that I am just a duty they perform each week.

It is with the greatest sadness and disappointment beyond measure that My children will suffer so great a disappointment, disillusionment, and discouragement. To know a people that is so driven by comfort and luxury, who knows not the toil and hardships of life, great destruction will bring about overwhelming devastation. Their every day comforts have become anticipated and expected. Toil and hardship will replace what was taken for granted. Toil and hardship will not go unnoticed or forgotten. But from toil and hardship will emerge a strong, compassionate people who have learned to depend on their Heavenly Father’s love and Jesus’ teachings. They will no longer seek their Lord out of duty, but out of passion to know Him and learn more about Him.

Toil and hardship also offers My children time that seeking after the nonexistent and unobtainable consumed: time to listen to My voice above all other voices. Toil and hardship will prepare My children for appreciation of the prosperity I want to shower on them. Giving my gifts to a people who are following after grandiose dreams and promises never to be fulfilled is like bailing water from a boat that has a huge hole in it. The more you give, the more they consume—energy, time, money, good will, love. One cannot accomplish much when one has so little to give (giving from what is left over.) My people are to be stripped of titles, positions, their hopes and dreams, their ambitions; all that consumes their energies and prevents Me from pouring out My prosperity on them. You would call this a transformation process; I call it a transcending the current and reaching to obtain the new.

Debbie, you become so engrossed in our time together. It is as if you sense Me; I become as close as your friend. You see, My people don’t have a need to seek Me, to know Me, to trust Me. They don’t love Me with a heart overflowing with Hope. They don’t seek Me, to listen for My voice of comfort, of instruction, or of warning; they seek after grandiose dreams and promises never to be fulfilled. Theirs is a path of destruction/devastation that will take them to the Path of Life where they will find Freedom. This is the path of the Righteous and these will be the ones who I will shower My gifts on.”

From one of the early writings dated 8/11/2002, “Those I love I chastise, Debbie” Debbie asks, “Am I the one You wish to chastise, Lord?” His response, “Yes, Debbie, at times I must chastise all My children. They turn away from what is right and good and seek that which will cause them pain and suffering. It is then that I step in and bring what they see as pain into their lives so they can experience My love and find their way back to the path I have set before them.

.... As humans, it is so hard for you to stay on the narrow path. Your eyes wander, your pride grows, your selfishness looms encompassing your very soul. It is with chastisement that your eyes seek My face, My ways, and My truth, and your feet find their way to tread on the slippery, narrow path; the one chosen for you to follow. You see once on the much traveled path, My children will find much pain and sorrow, but the temptations are great and the farther they go, the harder it is to find the narrow path on their own.

Debbie, it is not My desire to chastise you. You remain on the path I have set before you. You do not live a perfect life and say perfect things; I don't expect that. I want My people to seek My face, to follow Me, and to let Me teach them My ways—this is what I ask.

Debbie, there is coming a great chastisement to your nation. It will be sooner than later. Go and prepare for such a Day! I will give you the strength and knowledge. I will be your help in times of trouble. You will know because I have told you so in advance. Let this strengthen your faith in a day of trouble.”

And from 3/8/1999 (20 years ago—5 months after my first writing): “My child, can you feel the grief in My heart? Does your heart yearn to ease the pain in mine? I have come to share the secrets of My heart. There is coming a devastation like you have never seen. Trust Me. Love Me. And Know Me.

Out of this devastation many will not survive. I already feel their pain and hear their cries. I've tried to bring My children to safety. I've sent teachers; I've sent prophets, but many have failed to hear My voice of concern. My child, you have chosen to be obedient. When given choices, you chose to stay on the path with Me. I watched as you struggled — your strength, once, you thought was gone. It was then My strength in you was strongest. It's your compassion that makes you strong. It is the understanding that I have given you that makes you stronger than even you can know. In these last hours, I ask you to prepare. I'll show you how.”

Thank you for letting me share portions of these writings* with you. My hope in doing so is that you will become STRONG Warriors and Warriettes of Compassion and that you will know the TRUTH of How Much God Loves You, and to also prepare for the difficulties coming.
